

EVERYONE KNOWS that management conspires to keep workers down.

A friend tells me that personnel types have even got their own Doubletalk language.

This means that while you agree to initial what seems to be a fair report about your job performance, you are probably destroying your future.

So, in the hope that this might be of some use, I pass on the language.

Active socially: Drinks heavily.

Aggressive: argumentative.

Average: Not too bright.

Conscientious and careful: Scared.

Displays sound judgment: Lucky.

Expresses himself well: Wordy.

Good sense of humor: Has vast repertory of dirty jokes.

Indifferent to instruction: Knows more than superiors.

Keen analyst: Thoroughly confused.

Maintains professional attitude: Snob.

Meticulous: A Nitpicker.

Never misses an opportunity to progress: Buys drinks for superiors.

Not a desk man: Didn't go to college.

Of great value to organization: Squeals on workmates.

Possess leadership qualities: Loud.

Quick thinking: always has excuse.

Slightly above average: Stupid.

Stern disciplinarian: A bastard.

Strong adherence to principles: Stubborn.

Takes pride in work: conceited.

Tactful with superiors: Smarmy.

Unlimited potential: Here until retirement.

Zealous attitude: opinionated.

If you have heard any good ones, send them to:

Nick Danger

Edmonton Journal

Box 2421

Edmonton T5J 2S6

Help the revolution!