

ZAUBERSCHALTER is the German name for this novel method of remote control. Squeezing the rubber bulb forces air through an ultrasonic whistle. This is picked up by a microphone at the receiver, and made to actuate a relay to turn the set on and off. It has a range of at least 20 feet and, of course, no external wiring is needed.

